

Biography

Shaunna is originally from Wisconsin, Shaunna lived in Wisconsin her entire life until moving to Beaverton, Oregon back in 2008.

Shaunna's past work experiences have been in marketing, advertising, and of course, photography! Her focus with photography in the past was sports oriented for the most part when she lived in the Midwest. Starting in the 1980's she was a freelance photographer shooting for Cycle magazine, and race track programs. She also photographed weddings.

It was back in 2008, Shaunna moved to the beautiful state of Oregon and put down the large zoom lenses to pick up the wide angle lenses as her passion grew towards landscape and nature type photography. You could always find Shaunna in the mountains along the Columbia River Gorge or, along the ocean at Cannon Beach capturing emotionally-driven images with her cameras. It was plain to see that Shaunna belonged in the Northwest taking photographs!

Since moving to what Shaunna refers to as "Paradise" ( Whidbey Island ) back in 2011, Shaunna has developed a love for island sunsets, farmers markets, and the island community as a whole.

Shaunna's vision and passion... ( Artist Statement )

I have been blessed to have had the opportunity to create images for over 30 years with various types of cameras and with various post production methods.

No matter what niche of photography I work in, my vision has always been to photograph more than just the scene itself. My passion is to capture, create, and invoke an emotional response within that photograph.
